Global Health Program

THL's Global Health Program develops and implements a range of efforts and services contributing to U-M's efforts in global health

- establishing long-term goals and effective strategies to meet global health objectives
- developing partnerships
- instruction
- investigate research opportunities
- leadership in identifying global information resources
- cultivating partnerships with health sciences community
- exploring the role of global health informatics
- incorporating librarians into global health initiatives
- identifying and investigating grant and funding opportunities
- taking part in research efforts in global health
- collaborating with faculty to lessen health disparities around the world using the power of information resources.

Finding “global health” information.....

What type of information are you looking for?

How do you search?

Where do you search?

Information challenges?

What is your “favorite” resource?

Bottom line!

“What is your question??”

Matching information resource to information need.....

Establishing a research foundation...scratching the surface

The interdisciplinary nature of global health study and collaboration, leads to a need for an awareness of diverse resources.....

- medical & public health
- social-cultural/policy
- statistics and data visualization
- regional news sources
- country profiles; maps + tools.....

Mothers helping mothers fight HIV

In sub-Saharan Africa, HIV infections are more prevalent and doctors scarcer than anywhere else in the world. With a lack of medical professionals, Mitchell Besser enlisted the help of his patients to create mothers2mothers -- an extraordinary network of HIV-positive women whose support for each other is changing and saving lives.

Welcome to the new POPLINE site!

This revised website gives you new ways to use POPLINE, the world's largest database of reproductive health literature. Though we add thousands of new records to the database each year, this is the first major update to the website since 2003.

What's New?

- Modern design
- Multiple export options
- Mobile-friendly interface
- Customizable Advanced Search
- Saved searches and My Documents
- Over 400-pre-coordinated instant searches
- User profiles & updated document request process
- Filter search results by Keyword, Country, Language, and Year

The new features have been developed in response to feedback from POPLINE users, and we want to keep hearing from you. As you explore the new site, kindly take a few moments to answer 6 brief questions.

Your input helps keep POPLINE as useful as possible for the thousands of health and population professionals, researchers, scholars, teachers, and students who access POPLINE each month.

Shea butter (Vitellaria paradoxa, Butyrospermum paradoxum, Butyrospermum parkii)

Natural Standard Professional Monograph, Copyright © 2012 (www.naturalstandard.com).

Synonyms/Common Names/Related Substances:

- Butyrospermum paradoxum (C.F. Gaertn.), Butyrospermum parkii (G. Don) Kotschy, catechin, epicatechin, epicatechin gallate, epigallocatechin, epigallocatechin gallate, gallic acid, gallocatechin, gallocatechin gallate, oleic acid, phenolics, quercetin, saturated fatty acids, shea butter seed husks, shea kernels, shea nut butter, shea tree, stearic acid, sterols, stigmasterol, tocopherol, trans-cinnamic acid, triglycerides, triterpene alcohol, unsaturated fatty acids, Vitellaria paradoxa (C.F. Gaertn.).

Clinical Bottom Line/Effectiveness

Brief Background:

- Shea butter is derived from the nut of the shea tree (Vitellaria paradoxa) (1), which grows in West Africa. It has purportedly been used for centuries in Africa for various skin protecting effects.
- Shea butter has been shown to be effective in clinical trials for the treatment of nasal congestion (2) and for reducing serum cholesterol levels and coagulating factors (3).
- Although not currently supported by clinical trials, shea butter has also been marketed as a treatment for a variety of skin conditions including acne, burns, chapped lips, dry skin, eczema, psoriasis, scars, stretch marks, and wrinkles.
- Indications for which there is inconclusive anecdotal evidence for shea butter include its use as an anti-inflammatory topical cream for alleviation of arthritis and rheumatism and its use in bruise and muscle soreness healing.

MDG Report 2012 released - NEW!

The Millennium Development Goals Report 2012 was launched in New York by the Secretary-General on 2 July 2012. The report presents the yearly assessment of global progress towards the MDGs, highlighting several milestones – three important MDG targets have been met well ahead of the target date of 2015. The report says that meeting the remaining targets, while challenging, remain possible – but only if Governments do not waiver from their commitments made over a decade ago.

The report is based on a master set of data compiled by the Inter-Agency and Expert Group on MDG indicators led by the Statistics Division of the Department of Economic and Social Affairs.

The report is available in all UN languages. Arabic, Chinese, English, French, Russian and Spanish.

The World Bank eAtlas of Global Development maps and graphs more than 175 thematically organized indicators for over 200 countries, letting you visualize and compare progress on the most important development challenges facing our world. Most indicators cover several decades, so you can see, for example, how "life expectancy at birth" has improved from 1960 up through the latest year. Watch our short video for a quick overview!

This eAtlas, a new online companion to Atlas of Global Development, third edition, builds on the Atlas topics, allowing you to visualize and analyze a wider variety of data in greater depth, over a longer time period. You can

- Map more than 175 World Bank indicators worldwide
- Compare and view two maps simultaneously
- Animate maps to show change over time
- View all data in ranking tables and charts alongside maps
- Export maps and data for use in presentations and more
- Import your own data

Get started!

- Use the search box at top right if you know what kind of indicator you want to map, such as "malnutrition."
- Choose a theme on the right to read brief background about that issue, view the set of related indicators, and select an indicator to begin mapping.
- Log in to use advanced features like bookmark, export, import, share, and more. Creating an account is free, is non-invasive, and takes only seconds.

New Indian Express (Chennai, India) - September 29, 2012
Length: 370 words (Estimated printed pages: 2)
BHUBANESWAR, Sept. 29 -- Noted paediatrician Satish Saluja on Friday said creating nursing schools and producing better nurses were crucial to improving maternal and newborn health care indicators in India. If infant mortality rate has to be brought down, Saluja, a Fellow of National Neonatology Forum (NNF), said caution has to be adopted during the first 48 hours after childbirth. "Nearly two-thirds of the infant deaths take place in the first 48 hours alone and rest in...

Times of India, The (Mumbai, India) - September 27, 2012
Length: 764 words (Estimated printed pages: 3)
When we are under the weather, the first thing we do is to self-medicate . If that doesn't work, then we visit the nearest super-specialty hospital. This process typically ends up in big medical expenses . That's not how it used to be in India. The family doctor used to be the first point of contact. But the emergence of big corporate hospitals changed that practice to a great degree in cities. Dr Santanu Chattopadhyay is now trying to recreate the family doctor...

Man wins roach-eating competition, dies

MIAMI: The winner of a roach-eating contest in South Florida died shortly after downing dozens of the live bugs as well as worms on Monday. About 30 contestants ate the insects during Friday night's contest at Ben Siegel Reptile Store in Deerfield Beach, about 64 kilometres north of Miami. The grand prize was a winner, Edward Archibald, 32, became ill shortly after the Bangkok Post | Thailand | Wed, 10 Oct 2012

Steyn on Big Bird 15

Apparently, Frank Sinatra served as Mitt Romney's debate coach. As he put it about halfway through That's Life: "I'd jump right on a big bird and then I'd fly." That's what Mitt did in Denver. Ten minutes in, he jumped right on Big Bird, and then he took off — and never looked back, while the other fellow, whose name escapes me, never got out of the gate. It takes a certain panache to clobber not just your opponent but also the moderator. National Post - (Latest Edition) | Canada | Wed, 10 Oct 2012

Slipper quits in sexism brawl

JULIA Gillard has been left holding a knife-edge working majority of one seat after Peter Slipper dramatically resigned last night, just hours after the Prime Minister drew on the support of two independents and the sole Greens MP to save the Speaker from a bid to oust him from the chair for degrading women. The resignation came at the end of a day marked by Ms Gillard's ferocious attack on Tony Abbott for bringing sexism and misogyny into

'The rest of your life'

Bellefonte, pa. — Jerry Sandusky rested his elbows on the wooden lectern and leaned toward the judge. He didn't speak of remorse or plead for leniency, as many convicted felons do at sentencing. Instead, the former assistant football coach launched into a rallying speech, the type he might have once presented during an especially tough game at Penn State, where some remember him as "Touchdown Jerry." "We're definitely in the fourth quarter

Police pursuing 120 claims of abuse by Savile

Police are pursuing 120 separate lines of inquiry involving alleged rape and sexual abuse by Sir Jimmy Savile stretching over a period of four decades and "on a national scale", Scotland Yard said yesterday. Two formal criminal allegations of rape and six of indecent assault have been recorded to date against the late DJ and television presenter, who died last year, but police said they had received information relating to up to 25

UNFPA to launch its 'country programme 8' in state next year

BHOPAL: Life skills enhancement toward a better reproductive health of the tribal youth and adolescents would be in focus when the United Nations Population Fund (UNFPA) launches its ' country programme 8' in the state next year (2013).

At present, the UNFPA is in the process of holding discussions and studying the best models in the state, country and even outside the country to come out with a tailor-made programme that will help in better reach to targeted groups, country representative of UNFPA, Frederika Meijer said on Monday.

Meijer was in the city for the first time since she took over as the country representative and held discussions with a selected group of media persons.

She mentioned that the UNFPA aims at working with the state government (department of health) for improving maternal health, promoting response of different sectors toward ensuring dignity of the girl child, addressing the problem of declining child sex ratio and promoting voluntary family planning among young people.

In the entire scene, vulnerable youth and adolescents would be targeted and in case of MP, it would be tribal youth.

Under the country programme 8, one or two districts, selected by the state government would be taken up for interventions and later depending on the success of the intervention model, it would be scaled up to the entire state, Meijer said. New information channels, radio (including community radio) and the internet will be used to provide life skill information to the youth.

"Out target is to help married youth in postponing their first child and then space the next child effectively. Also, through life skill education we are not promoting sex at a young age, rather trying to help the adolescents in postponing the first experience," she said.
