

As the University of Michigan School of Nursing welcomes students back to campus to resume in-person activities, we would like to provide you with an update on our COVID-19 policies and expectations, which will evolve over time as the COVID-19 pandemic continues to unfold. All nursing students are required to comply with health and safety protocols and public health guidance to help minimize and prevent the spread of disease within our community. The following policy applies to all in-person student activities resumed at the University of Michigan School of Nursing:

- Consistent with our EPIC principles for students, faculty and staff, we are all expected to act in a manner that demonstrates respect and consideration for those around us, including respect and consideration for the health and safety of all School of Nursing community members.
- Students are expected to follow and comply with any public health guidance as it relates to the spread of communicable diseases, including COVID-19, as well as any protocols, guidelines or policies adopted by the University or the School of Nursing that relates to COVID-19. This guidance will evolve as the public health crisis evolves and may include the following: health screening protocols, participation in contact tracing, use of face coverings, COVID-19 diagnostic testing, disinfection protocols, limitations on gatherings, and social distancing. Current guidelines, which are subject to change, can be found here for the University and are aligned with the CDC recommendations. Further details for the School of Nursing are also available here.
- Adherence to health and safety requirements applies to all nursing students and extends to all aspects of the facilities, clinical labs, classrooms, bathrooms and other spaces within the School of Nursing and in School of Nursing affiliated or sponsored programming and clinical rotations. Additional requirements may be in place for specific clinical sites and will be provided as part of the onboarding process for clinical placements for students.
- Students who test positive or have symptoms for COVID-19 will notify University Health Services Hotline (734-764-8320) immediately.
- Students who test positive for or have symptoms of COVID-19 are not permitted to enter the School of Nursing until medically cleared to resume in-person activities consistent with the recommendations of Occupational Health Services.
- Similar to compliance with the student honor code, compliance with these policies is an expectation and failure to follow these guidelines are subject to disciplinary consequences consistent with the policies outlined in the student handbook
- I agree that I will cooperate with and participate in any contact tracing process used by UM or the School of Nursing if requested.

By resuming in-person student activities, I acknowledge that I have read and understand the above Student Acknowledgement.
