

Postdoctoral Fellowship Opportunity

University of Michigan School of Nursing (UMSN) is accepting applications starting in Fall 2019 for a two-year postdoctoral fellowship, funded by a NINR T32 training program.

Program Description: Complexity: Innovations in Promoting Health and Safety (CIPHS) focuses on promoting health through prevention and safety (for example: risky behavior, injury prevention, worker safety, reproductive and sexual health) and promoting health in the context of chronic conditions to facilitate living well with chronic illness (for example: complex symptoms in cancer survivors, quality of life with chronic illness). UMSN is committed to working with underserved and vulnerable populations, and we encourage research focused on these populations in this postdoctoral fellowship. Underserved and vulnerable populations include racial and ethnic minorities, people with sexuality-related health disparities, older adults, and people in rural and urban areas.

Requirements:

- Applicants must have a PhD in nursing or related field (If PhD is in a related field, then a master's degree in nursing is required)
- Applicants must also show commitment to a research career in one of the focus areas.
- See <https://nursing.umich.edu/research/postdoctoral-research-fellows> for more details and deadline.

Questions?

Contact Marita Titler, PhD, RN, FAAN, at mtitler@umich.edu or Marjorie McCullagh, PhD, RN, PHNA-BC, COHN-S, FAOHN, FAAN, at mcculla@umich.edu.

